

Betty S. Annan, Ph.D

USA AND ACCRA, GHANA

Dr. Betty Annan plays a key role in youth and women empowerment where she focuses on building the capacity of young men and women for future leadership roles.

She has worked extensively to improve the livelihoods of many youths and women in rural communities in Ghana and in other parts of African. In the Christian circles, she's worked with youth mostly in the Baptist and Methodist churches and served as a mentor for many both locally and internationally.

She currently works as a Global Technical Advisor for Agricultural Livelihoods with the Catholic Relief Services in the US and had previously occupied senior management positions in several international organizations. She was the Country Director for the World Cocoa Foundation, Country Manager for Fairtrade Africa, Country Manager for Agribusiness Systems International, and served on boards of both private and public institutions. She lectured at the Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University as well as the University of Ghana.

She holds a PhD in Environmental Science from Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University, USA; and a MSc in Natural Resources from University of Greenwich, UK; having obtained a BSc. in Agriculture from Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology.